GERMANS AVER BLOW IS FINAL

Teutons Say Czar's Forces Cannot Recover.

EMPERORS PLAN CELEBRATION

British Press Make Only Slight Comment—Russians Are Praised for Rear Guard Action in Retirement
From Lemberg.

RUSS ADMIT RETREAT
FROM LEMBERG.

London, June 24.—A Russian official communication received here confirms the success of the Austrians and Germans that the Russians evacuated Lemberg and continued to retreat on a new front.
Emperor Nicholas has left for the front according to Reuter's Petrograd correspondent.

London, June 24.—Whether the fall of Lemberg means that the Russian army operating south of it, in southeast Galicia, is effectively cut off from the army to the north, stretching across Poland to the Baltic, cannot yet be said. The newspapers of both Vienna and Berlin say this is the case
and that the Russian armies received a blow from which they cannot recover.

If this stroke proves as crushing as the Teutons predict, its effect, military observers here say, soon should be felt in the transfer of vast German forces to the west, where for days
they have been hard pressed by the French.

Petrograd has conceded the fall of Lemberg. Previous dispatches from the Russian capital, however, related details of what purported to be the systematic withdrawal of the Russians
from the town, and if these details should prove correct, it is believed in military circles here that when the count is taken of the Austro-German bounty, it will be not large, for, as was the case at Przemyśl, the Russians are said to have worked hard to move everything of military value.

Russians Retreat in Good Order.

Telegrams received from Vienna
concerning the capture of Lemberg and recounting the celebration of the populace in Vienna over the victory,
add that the Austrian correspondents
with the Teutonic armies pay tribute to the magnificent rear guard action fought by the Russians, who are declared to have retreated eastward in good order, leaving behind few prisoners, and even removing the Russian documents from the city, which, since the Russians occupied it, has been called by them Lwow.

One telegram from Vienna says Emperor William and Emperor Francis Joseph purpose to meet soon in the recaptured Galician capital for special ceremonies to mark the end of Russian dominance of Galicia.

The British press has been expecting such a development and there was no more than passing comment on it, though it drove home, according to military observers, the fact how ample must have been the Austro-German ammunition supply to accomplish the feat.

Berlin and Vienna are reported to be filled with joy over the victory of their forces. Archduke Frederick of Austria, commander-in-chief of the Austrian forces, and General August
von Mackensen of the German army have been made field marshals of the Prussian army in recognition of their services in the Galician campaign.

LLOYD-GEORGE GIVES UNIONS SEVEN DAYS

Leaders Promise Enough Men to Turn Out Munitions.

London, June 24.—David Lloyd-George, the minister of munitions, has given British labor seven days in which to make good the promise of its leaders that men will rally to the factories in sufficient numbers to produce a maximum supply of munitions
of war.

This was the most striking statement in the house of commons in the course of outlining the munitions measure, which is designed to control
not only the output but the men responsible for the output.

"I had a fresh discussion with the trades union leaders," said Mr.
Lloyd-George, in his speech, "and told them if an adequate supply of labor
could not be secured, compulsion was inevitable."

"The unions represented answered:
'Give us a chance to supply the men needed in seven days; if we cannot get them we will admit that our case
is considerably weakened.'"

There will be no age limit to the men enrolled; they will not wear uniforms, but will have to give their full time to the work and they will receive a certificate attesting that they are working for king and country.

The munitions bill makes strikes
and lockouts illegal; provides for compulsory arbitration; limits the profits of employers; creates a voluntary army of workmen pledged to go where-ever they are wanted, and contains other provisions which will give the minister full powers to carry out the plans he has devised to develop the production of munitions.

LABOR DISPUTE IS SETTLED

Issue Between New Haven Railroad
and Its Clerks Settled.

New Haven, Conn., June 24.—All the points at issue between the New York,
New Haven & Hartford Railroad company and its 1,800 freight clerks have been amicably settled, according to a statement given out by Clifton Reeves,
a federal conciliator, whose eleven hour efforts in bringing about a conference probably averted a strike.

ARBITRATION IS REJECTED

Chicago Carpenters' Council Votes Against Proposal.

Chicago, June 24.—The Carpenters' council, it was announced, had voted to reject arbitration of the strike now
in progress and involving 16,000 men.
The contractors' association, it was said, will at once put in force their threat of a general shutdown of building material plants. There are 600
members in the association.

Should all the producers of building material close their plants it is estimated 200,000 workmen will be out of work.

Pacific Coast Crew, Candidate for Hudson Championship

This is the Leland Stanford, Jr., University eight, which the Pacific coast has sent to the regatta on the Hudson river to show the eastern colleges that they do not know all
there is to be learned about rowing.
They bring along with them Frank Gaurena, the youngest coach in the business of teaching college crews.
The eight has had only two rows
on the Hudson with one of the heaviest crews that has ever rowed in a Shell. The Californians average a shade under 180 pounds. Whether this excessive weight indicates great power is hard to say. They won the Coast championship in a three-mile race in record time. That in itself is evidence that the crew had the speed

to defeat the University of California
and the University of Washington, but whether it will be able to last the full four miles on the Hudson is a question that will be answered only on race day.

LATEST WAR NEWS

WILL MAKE CONCESSIONS

(By United Press)

Berlin, June 24.—Although it will probably be delayed two weeks
more, it is positively and reliably asserted that the German reply
will make some decided concessions. It is quite possible that the reply which is now in its preliminary stages will suggest distinguishing marks for vessels carrying non contraband to insure them against submarine attack. On account of the fact that the note will probably frame future international law, the Germans are proceeding cautiously. However the German answer will mark a distinct advance toward securing the freedom of the seas, for which Von Jagow says Germany is fighting.

Berlin, June 24.—"On to Paris"

They will abandon the Galician

SAYS BUY MEXICAN STRIP

Senator Cummins Declares U. S.
Needs Lower California.

Des Moines, June 24.—"When the
day comes on which order has been brought out of the chaos in Mexico
and peace is established there the United States ought to buy—not conquer or acquire in any other way—
Lower California from Mexico."

"We need it; it ought to belong to the United States, and whatever influence I may be able to bring to bear
will be for the purchase by the United States from Mexico of Lower California."

This was the statement of Senator
Albert B. Cummins before the Commercial club. He declared that he sees less hope now of bringing order into Mexico without intervention than ever before.

FOUR DEAD, QUAKE LOSS IS $400,000

Lower California Tremors Continue Intermittently.

El Centro, Cal., June 24.—In an area
extending roughly from the shoulder
of the Cocopah mountains of Lower California to San Bernardino and
Needles, Cal., on the north, Yuma,
Ariz., on the east, and San Diego on
the west, a series of earthquakes
wrought damage estimated at about $400,000, killed four persons and injured perhaps a score.

The tremors continued intermit-
tently, decreasing steadily in strength
and doing only negligible damage.

The zone in which the tremors were felt most centered about Calexico and Mexicali, the Mexican town opposite
in Lower California, where all the fatalities occurred. The men and women killed were crushed beneath the adobe wall of a dance hall.

In this city, where an entire block
of the business section was ruined,
gangs of men were at work clearing
the debris. At Calexico similar work
was in progress. The damage here
was estimated at close to $200,000.
The loss at Calexico was estimated
at something less than that.

CUSTOMS REVENUES SLUMP.

Officials Assert Total for Fiscal Year
Will Be $30,000,000 Shy.

Washington, June 24.—Customs officials declared that the revenues from customs now in hand for the fiscal year, which ends June 30, amount to more than $204,000,000, and that there
is a prospect that the total for the
year will close to $210,000,000.

This would be $30,000,000 below the
estimates made by Secretary McAdoo
last fall and less by more than $80,- 000,000 than the receipts last year, before the European war interfered with imports.

MANY TURKS ARE KILLED

Thirteen Hundred Slain in Dardanelles Battle.

Cairo, June 24.—Thirteen hundred
Turks were killed in an all-day fight
for a Turkish position at the Dardanelles on June 19, an official bulletin
stated.

The allied troops rushed the Turkish trenches and drove the enemy
out despite a heavy bombardment
from Turkish guns.

CARRANZA WILL NOT COMPROMISE

To Crush Adversaries by Military Campaign.

DECLARES HE WILL DOMINATE

President Wilson is Informed First
Chief in War Torn Republic Will Not Deal With General Villa—Report Holds Little Hope for Conciliation.

Washington, June 23.—General Carranza has informed the United States
government that under no circumstances will he treat with General
Villa; that he will not compromise
with his opponents and that he will
continue his plan to crush his adversaries by military campaign.

President Wilson has before him a long report on General Carranza's
views as given in informal conversation with an American consular officer at Vera Cruz.

He found in it little hope for an accommodation of differences as between the Mexican factions.

Carranza's Reasons Are Same.

General Carranza gave the same argument for refusing to enter into
peace negotiations with General Villa
as he has made on previous occasions
recently, reiterating that his is not a
campaign for the elevation of personalities, but for the principles of the revolution; that his opponents are
"reactionaries" and desirous only of
satisfying personal ambitions.

Outlining his plans for the future,
Carranza said that he will soon dominate the situation and will grant
amnesty to all who were not guilty of crimes.

General Villa and his associates,
however, according to General Carranza, must either leave the country
or be tried by a military court.

SONORA TROOPS ON WAY TO PROTECT FOREIGNERS.

Washington, June 24.—In a wire-

valley, carrying Sonora state troops
to Esperanza to protect foreign settlers who have been threatened by

THIRTEEN TESTIFY FOR THAW

Former Jurors, Two Chaplains and Tombs Keeper Heard.

New York, June 24.—Thirteen witnesses, including Thaw himself, testified that they believed Harry K.
Thaw is sane. They appeared in the proceedings before a jury to test
Thaw's present mental state, on the outcome of which depends the question whether the slayer of Stanford
White will go free or return to the insane asylum from which he escaped.

The witnesses included four jurors
at Thaw's former trials, two chaplains, a physician and a keeper at the Tombs prison, where Thaw was at various times confined. Two newspaper men who had been associated
with him during the nine years' history of Thaw litigation, a lawyer who
had met Thaw in New Hampshire and
a juror in civil proceedings instituted
by one of Thaw's former attorneys
against Thaw's mother.

They all agreed that Thaw showed
no symptoms of delusion; that he
could talk intelligently on many subjects; had never been violent in his conduct to their knowledge, and was
rational in his talk and actions.

Thaw, himself, appeared to be composed when on the witness stand and
answered the questions of his attorney in well modulated voice and
without hesitation.

Denies Influencing President Wilson

(By United Press)

Furness, president of the International Seamen's Union, has denied using any influence in persuading President Wilson to cause American shipping to disappear from the Pacific when the LaFollett seamen's act becomes effective on Nov. 4. It is said that the reports of the Pacific mail being discontinued is untrue, merely reorganizing the stock
to shake up the Southern Pacific railroad, keeping the supreme court order.

Senator Cummins Declares U. S.
Needs Lower California.

Des Moines, June 24.—"When the
day comes on which order has been
brought out of the chaos in Mexico
and peace is established there the United States ought to buy—not con-
quer or acquire in any other way—
Lower California from Mexico."

"We need it; it ought to belong to
the United States, and whatever influence I may be able to bring to bear
will be for the purchase by the United States from Mexico of Lower California."

This was the statement of Senator
Albert B. Cummins before the Commercial club. He declared that he sees
less hope now of bringing order into
before.

FOUR DEAD, QUAKE LOSS IS $400,000

Lower California Tremors Continue Intermittently.

El Centro, Cal., June 24.—In an area
extending roughly from the shoulder
of the Cocopah mountains of Lower California to San Bernardino and
Needles, Cal., on the north, Yuma,
Ariz., on the east, and San Diego on
the west, a series of earthquakes
wrought damage estimated at about $400,000, killed four persons and injured perhaps a score.

The tremors continued intermit-
tently, decreasing steadily in strength
and doing only negligible damage.

The zone in which the tremors were
felt most centered about Calexico and Mexicali, the Mexican town opposite
in Lower California, where all the fatalities occurred. The men and women killed were crushed beneath the
adobe wall of a dance hall.

In this city, where an entire block
of the business section was ruined,
gangs of men were at work clearing
the debris. At Calexico similar work
was in progress. The damage here
was estimated at close to $200,000.
The loss at Calexico was estimated
at something less than that.

Officials Assert Total for Fiscal Year
Will Be $30,000,000 Shy.

Washington, June 24.—Customs officials declared that the revenues from
customs now in hand for the fiscal
year, which ends June 30, amount to
more than $204,000,000, and that there
is a prospect that the total for the
year will close to $210,000,000.

This would be $30,000,000 below the
estimates made by Secretary McAdoo
last fall and less by more than $50,
000,000 than the receipts last year, before the European war interfered with
imports.

MANY TURKS ARE KILLED

Thirteen Hundred Slain in Darda-
nelles Battle.

Cairo, June 24.—Thirteen hundred
Turks were killed in an all-day fight
for a Turkish position at the Dardanelles on June 19, an official bulletin
stated.

The allied troops rushed the Turkish trenches and drove the enemy
out despite a heavy bombardment
from Turkish guns.

To Crush Adversaries by Military Campaign.

President Wilson is Informed First
Chief in War Torn Republic Will
Not Deal With General Villa—Re-
port Holds Little Hope for Con-
ciliation.

Washington, June 23.—General Car-
ranza has informed the United States
government that under no circumstances will he treat with General
Villa; that he will not compromise
with his opponents and that he will
continue his plan to crush his ad-
versaries by military campaign.

President Wilson has before him a
long report on General Carranza's
views as given in informal conversation with an American consular officer at Vera Cruz.

He found in it little hope for an
accommodation of differences as between the Mexican factions.

Carranza's Reasons Are Same.

General Carranza gave the same argument for refusing to enter into
peace negotiations with General Villa
as he has made on previous occasions
recently, reiterating that his is not a
campaign for the elevation of personalities, but for the principles of the
revolution; that his opponents are
"reactionaries" and desirous only of
satisfying personal ambitions.

Outlining his plans for the future,
Carranza said that he will soon do-
minate the situation and will grant
amnesty to all who were not guilty of
crimes.

General Villa and his associates,
however, according to General Car-
ranza, must either leave the country
or be tried by a military court.

SONORA TROOPS ON WAY TO PROTECT FOREIGNERS.

Washington, June 24.—In a wire-
less message to the navy department Admiral Howard said he had been informed that a relief train had succeeded in passing through the Yaqui
valley, carrying Sonora state troops
to Esperanza to protect foreign settlers who have been threatened by Indians.

THIRTEEN TESTIFY FOR THAW

Former Jurors, Two Chaplains and Tombs Keeper Heard.

New York, June 24.—Thirteen witnesses, including Thaw himself, testified that they believed Harry K.
Thaw is sane. They appeared in the
proceedings before a jury to test
Thaw's present mental state, on the
outcome of which depends the question whether the slayer of Stanford
White will go free or return to the
insane asylum from which he escaped.

The witnesses included four jurors
at Thaw's former trials, two chaplains, a physician and a keeper at the Tombs prison, where Thaw was at
various times confined. Two newspaper men who had been associated
with him during the nine years' history of Thaw litigation, a lawyer who
had met Thaw in New Hampshire and
a juror in civil proceedings instituted
by one of Thaw's former attorneys
against Thaw's mother.

They all agreed that Thaw showed
no symptoms of delusion; that he
could talk intelligently on many subjects; had never been violent in his
conduct to their knowledge, and was
rational in his talk and actions.

Thaw, himself, appeared to be composed when on the witness stand and
answered the questions of his attorney in well modulated voice and
without hesitation.

GARDEN ANTS DO LITTLE HARM

They Do Not Injure Plants and If They Disfigure Lawns They May
be Easily Controlled

Washington, D. C., June 24.—An unusual number of complaints have
been received this year by the Department of Agriculture from persons who say that ants are injuring their lawns and gardens. As a matter of fact, these ants do little
harm and the injury that is attributed to them is usually caused by
something else. In large numbers,
however, the small conical nests
which they build on lawns are somewhat unsightly and on this account
it may be desirable in some cases to destroy them.

Where there is only a small area
to be covered the simplest method is
to drench the nests with boiling water. Another simple remedy is to spray the lawn with kerosene emulsion or with a very strong soap wash
prepared by dissolving any common
laundry soap in water at the rate of
one pound or one and one-half pound
to a gallon of water. Such methods
are particularly well adapted to small lawns and for the ordinary little lawn ant.

For larger ant colonies of other
species, bisulphide of carbon, a chemical which can be purchased at any drug store, will be found effective.
This substance can be placed in the
nest by means of an oil can or small
syringe, the quantity required varying from one-half ounce for a small
nest to two or three ounces or more
for a large one. An oil can with a long spout is a convenient instrument as it can be inserted into the
nests and the liquid injected without
its being brought close to the operator's nose, for the fumes of bisulphide of carbon although not poisonous are nauseating. To facilitate the entrance into the nest of the chemical, the ant hole can be enlarged
with a sharp stick or iron rod. After
the bisulphide of carbon has been injected, the opening should be closed
by pressure of the foot in order to retain the bisulphide. This will penetrate slowly throughout the underground channels of the nest and kill
all the inmates. It is important to remember that while bisulphide is perfectly harmless if kept away from
all fire, it is very inflammable and
may, under certain circumstances,
explode when ignited.

Except for the unsightly appearance of their nests, however, the lawn ants do no appreciable harm.
They are frequently noted on roses
and on other ornamental and garden plants, and it is naturally supposed that they are doing harm to these. As a matter of fact, it is not the plants that attract the ants, but
plant lice. These tiny creatures ex-
crete a sweet liquid of which ants
are very fond and which they collect without injuring the plant lice.
For this reason plant lice are frequently termed "ant cows." The analogy is emphasized by the fact

Petrograd Makes Simple An-

DEFENSIVE FORCES ARE BROKEN

Assert Capture of One Thousand Prisoners Near Dniester—Vienna
Report Declares Rout Is Complete.
Lemberg Evacuated on 22d.

Petrograd, June 24.—The following official communication, in which the details of the evacuation of Lemberg are given, has been made public by the war office:

"In the Shavl region there is no change. The fighting continues.
"South of the Ralgrad lakes our troops on the night of 22d, crossing
the River Egrin, occupied the village of Korhish, annihilating an entire German company.

"In the direction of Lemberg there has been violent artillery fire.

"On the lanes near the village of Lubliniec, we repulsed enemy attacks.
To the west of Rawa Ruska, the enemy was driven back from some villages and near the village of Gutazelena our cavalry sabered three enemy companies.

Quit Lemberg on 22d.

"On the 21st and during the following night in the direction of Lwov (Lemberg) we arrested an enemy offensive by stubborn fighting. The enemy suffered great losses in the course of barren attacks near the village of Erzohoviec and further south on the River Szczerzec, but succeeded in advancing in the region of the town of Jolkeff.

"Consequently on the 23d our troops
quit Lwov and continued their retreat on a new front.

"On the Dniester the battle has continued south of the village of Kosmierjine, where the enemy is holding his ground on the left bank of the river.

"In the bends of the Dniester we drove the enemy back from the village of Unich toward the village of Lukis. In a successful bayonet fight
we captured a thousand prisoners."

FOURTH OF JULY ADVICE BY WASHINGTON.

[In his address to the governors of the states, June 8, 1883.]

There are four things which I humbly conceive are essential to the well being—I may even venture to say to the existence—of the United States as an independent power:

First, an indissoluble union
of the states under one federal head.

Secondly, a sacred regard to public justice.

Thirdly, the adoption of a proper peace establishment, and,

Fourthly, the prevalence of that pacific and friendly disposition among the people of the United States which will induce them to forget their local prejudices and policies, to make those mutual concessions which are requisite to the general prosperity and in some instances to sacrifice their individual advantages to the interest of the community.

Wrote Only Old Glory's Song.

Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star Spangled Banner," wrote only one famous poem, but its fame is such as to insure his lasting place in the remembrance of the patriotic American people. He was born in 1759 and died in 1843.

Thackeray's Twopenny Tart.

This Thackeray story is told by the late Charles Brookfield in his "Random Reminiscences." "Early in their married life," he writes, "my father and mother lived in lodgings in Jermyn street (he was curate at St.
James' church at the time). One evening he unexpectedly brought home Thackeray for dinner and introduced him to my mother. She was rather overwhelmed by the knowledge that there was nothing in the house but a cold shoulder of mutton. It was too late to contrive anything more elaborate, so to 'give an air' to the table
she sent her maid to a neighboring pastry cook's for a dozen tartlets of various kinds. 'Which of these may I give you?' she inquired in due course
of Thackeray. 'Thank you, Mrs.
Brookfield,' said he: 'I'll have a two-penny one.'"

GARDEN ANTS DO LITTLE HARM

They Do Not Injure Plants and If They Disfigure Lawns They May
be Easily Controlled

Washington, D. C., June 24.—An
unusual number of complaints have
been received this year by the Department of Agriculture from persons who say that ants are injuring their lawns and gardens. As a matter of fact, these ants do little
harm and the injury that is attributed to them is usually caused by
something else. In large numbers,
however, the small conical nests
which they build on lawns are some-
what unsightly and on this account
it may be desirable in some cases to destroy them.

Where there is only a small area
to be covered the simplest method is
to drench the nests with boiling
water. Another simple remedy is to
spray the lawn with kerosene emul-
sion or with a very strong soap wash
prepared by dissolving any common
laundry soap in water at the rate of
one pound or one and one-half pound
to a gallon of water. Such methods
are particularly well adapted to small
lawns and for the ordinary little
lawn ant.

For larger ant colonies of other
species, bisulphide of carbon, a chemical which can be purchased at any
drug store, will be found effective.
This substance can be placed in the
nest by means of an oil can or small
syringe, the quantity required vary-
ing from one-half ounce for a small
nest to two or three ounces or more
for a large one. An oil can with a long spout is a convenient instrument as it can be inserted into the
nests and the liquid injected without
its being brought close to the operator's nose, for the fumes of bisul-
phide of carbon although not poisonous are nauseating. To facilitate the
entrance into the nest of the chemical, the ant hole can be enlarged
with a sharp stick or iron rod. After
the bisulphide of carbon has been injected, the opening should be closed
by pressure of the foot in order to
retain the bisulphide. This will penetrate slowly throughout the underground channels of the nest and kill
all the inmates. It is important to remember that while bisulphide is
perfectly harmless if kept away from
all fire, it is very inflammable and
may, under certain circumstances,
explode when ignited.

Except for the unsightly appearance of their nests, however, the
lawn ants do no appreciable harm.
They are frequently noted on roses
and on other ornamental and garden plants, and it is naturally supposed that they are doing harm to
these. As a matter of fact, it is not
the plants that attract the ants, but
plant lice. These tiny creatures ex-
crete a sweet liquid of which ants
are very fond and which they collect without injuring the plant lice.
For this reason plant lice are frequently termed "ant cows." The
analogy is emphasized by the fact

Vienna, June 24.—The following of-

"The northwest and west fronts of Lemberg, on the line of Zolkiew to

Widespread Vogue for Cretonne—Hats Not a Novelty—Skirts of Cretonne, Striped or Flowered

There is no doubt of the widespread vogue for cretonne. The cretonne hats are not a novelty, for they have been worn to a certain extent during the past summers, but they are everywhere this year, and with them are worn the combination cretonne and linen costumes. The skirt, for instance, may be of cretonne, striped or flowered, and the shirt-waist or smock of the plain material, with collar and cuffs of the cretonne.

There are also separate boluses of the cretonne in addition to the middy and smock styles, and jackets of various jaunty cuts. The cretonne jacket, however, cannot be classed as an extreme novelty, for it has accompanied the cretonne on various occasions during the last few years. Jackets of plain linen, too, have been lined with cretonne in the past. Then there are cretonne parasols and separate collar and cuffs sets, and any day we may expect to see the cretonne slippers.

The striped linen costume is the aristocratic sister of the cretonne costume. The skirt is generally of the striped linen, with a yoke effect simulated by an encircling stripe, while the blouse is of the plain linen with trimmings of the stripes. The linen parasol is striped in various bright-colored linen tapes, and the cane bottom chair hat is trimmed with grapes fashioned from the tape. As a summer costume for the beach or the country, it is as practical as it is picturesque.

The yoke effect shown in the new skirts is very interesting and sure to appeal to the American woman, for it gives her the smooth, close-fitting effect over the hips which she is loath to relinquish. A particularly good-looking skirt in brown velvet had a very deep yoke, finished by a band under which the circular flounce was attached. This is flared in the impetuous fashion of the hour.

Porcelain beads are being used by many couturiers for the trimming of blouses and for evening gowns and negligees. These beads are washable, will not break, and are being used to the exclusion of embroidery and lace on the filmy waists of Georgette crepe, marquisette and voile.

Our mothers and grandmothers will recall the great vogue of the Garibaldi waist of the '60s, following the visit here of the Italian war hero, for whom the style was named, and now Mme. Hosac has created a modern adaption of this fashion, which is distinguished for its brilliant hue and simplicity. The transparent waist is of red Georgette crepe and soft black taffeta, with white linen cuffs. This simplicity of treatment is carried out in the finishing of the neck. The full gored skirt is trimmed with bands of taffeta edged with the red Georgette crepe.—From H. W. Gossard Corset Co.—Courtesy H. F. Michael Co.

YOUNG SOCIETY MATRON LAYS DOWN RULES

In discussing the approaching social season, a young matron says that the success of every event, whether in home, church or club, depends upon the foresight of the women months before.

The brilliancy, charm and success of a party is dependent upon the physical condition of the hostess. She cannot be entertaining witty or clever, if she is loaded down with all the complaints a woman is heir to; and very few are free from the functional troubles which bring with them dizziness, headache, sick headache, sleeplessness and intense nervousness.

Thousands upon thousands of mothers, wives and daughters in every section of this great country, who have regained health, vigor and cheerful disposition after months of misery and even despair are the ones who truly appreciate the marvelous restorative power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Every woman who has reason to believe that backache, headache, unnatural pains, low spirits, sleepless nights, irregularities of a catarrhal condition is caused by a derangement of the womanly functions, owes it to herself and dear ones to speedily overcome the trouble before a general breakdown causes permanent prostration.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a remedy that any ailing woman can safely take because it is prepared with pure glycerine from roots and herbs, containing tonic properties of the most pronounced character and without alcohol.

Get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription today, either in liquid or tablet form, at any dealer in medicines. If you want to better your physical condition surely and speedily. Every ingredient in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is printed along with the directions.

Every ailing woman should write today for confidential advice to a specialist who has had years of experience in treating diseases peculiar to women. His advice is given without charge, and writing places you under no obligation whatever. Simply address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. UNION PICNIC

Sunday Schools of Daggett Brook, South Long Lake and Gibbs School Picnic

On Saturday, June 19th the Sunday schools from Daggett Brook, South Long Lake and the Gibb school house held their annual picnic at Armstrong Point on the shore of Long lake. A large crowd attended, some coming from points as far as ten miles distant.

Dinner was served at noon under the trees and a fifty foot table was three times filled with picnickers, made hungry with the cool wind and warm sunshine of a beautiful June day. Every boat at the Point was in use during the day and boating parties circled in every direction with no spillings or accidents to mar the pleasure of the occasion. Even with many who resided near the lake it was the first time the opportunity for a boat ride had been given this season which added to the enjoyment. Some few brought along fishing tackle, but there was so much going on by land and water that circumstances did not at any time become quiet enough for fishing. Large rope swings suspended from the trees afforded amusement for the small children and there was many a good natured contest over the possession of them and the matter of who was to "ride" next had sometimes to be settled by the parents.

A hotly contested ball game between two nines assembled on the ground, was played in a field north-east of the lake and the shouts of the rooters could be heard at times, when the wind was favorable, for a mile. The Sutton nine played South Long lake, winning 13 to 9.

A program consisting of speaking and singing was given between two and three o'clock and the following speakers addressed the crowd. Rev. W. J. Lowrie, Rev. Walter Smith and Rev. F. Kirker. A vocal trio was rendered by Miss Florence Sutton, Miss Alta Maust and Clarence J. Martin. Mr. Martin sang an original song, "The Boozers Lament," accompanied by the guitar, in which he appeared in genuine tramp regalia with tomato can, pipe, beer bottle, etc.

The song was composed in the interest of the coming county option election and anyone having suspicions as to the contents of the bottle carried by Mr. Martin are referred to Rev. M. L. Hostager or H. F. Michael of Brainerd, who will cheerfully give any information consistent with any reasonable request.

The annual Union Sunday school picnic at South Long lake is every year growing in attendance and favor. Much of its success is due to the tireless efforts of Rev. Walter J. Smith, American Sunday School Union missionary, who has been for many years on that field. Among many living in that part of the county who have also rendered assistance are Mr. and Mrs. Al. Sinclair, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Devlin, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hughey, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Maust, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Fernstermacher, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Morecomb and others whose names are not at this writing available.

The picnic is held on the farm of J. D. Armstrong who donates each year the use of the grounds and the boats. Many of the refreshments are, through the kindness of Mrs. Armstrong prepared in the farm kitchen and many are the crying babies who are fed and cared for by their tired mothers during each picnic day within the hospitable walls of the Armstrong home. At the close of Saturday's picnic announcement was made that it would be held again in June, 1916. C. J. M.

The brilliancy, charm and success of a party is dependent upon the physical condition of the hostess. UNION PICNIC

Sunday Schools of Daggett Brook, South Long Lake and Gibbs School Picnic

On Saturday, June 19th the Sunday schools from Daggett Brook, South Long Lake and the Gibbs school house held their annual picnic at Armstrong Point on the shore of Long lake. A large crowd attended, some coming from points as far as ten miles distant.

Dinner was served at noon under the trees and a fifty foot table was three times filled with picnickers, made hungry by the cool wind and warm sunshine of a beautiful June day. Every boat at the Point was in use during the day and boating parties circled in every direction with no spillings or accidents to mar the pleasure of the occasion. Even with many who resided near the lake it was the first time the opportunity for a boat ride had been given this season which added to the enjoyment. Some few brought along fishing tackle, but there was so much going on by land and water that circumstances did not at any time become quiet enough for fishing. Large rope swings suspended from the trees afforded amusement for the small children and there was many a good natured contest over the possession of them and the matter of who was to "ride" next had sometimes to be settled by the parents.

A hotly contested ball game between two nines assembled on the ground, was played in a field north-east of the lake and the shouts of the rooters could be heard at times, when the wind was favorable, for a mile. The Sutton nine played South Long lake, winning 13 to 9.

A program consisting of speaking and singing was given between two and three o'clock and the following speakers addressed the crowd. Rev. W. J. Lowrie, Rev. Walter Smith and Rev. F. Kirker. A vocal trio was rendered by Miss Florence Sutton, Miss Alta Maust and Clarence J. Martin. Mr. Martin sang an original song, "The Boozer's Lament," accompanied by the guitar, in which he appeared in genuine tramp regalia with tomato can, pipe, beer bottle, etc.

The song was composed in the interest of the coming county option election and anyone having aspirations as to the contents of the bottle carried by Mr. Martin are referred to Rev. M. L. Hostager or H. F. Michael of Brainerd, who will cheerfully give any information consistent with any reasonable request.

The annual Union Sunday school picnic at South Long lake is every year growing in attendance and favor. Much of its success is due to the tireless efforts of Rev. Walter J. Smith, American Sunday School Union missionary, who has been for many years on that field. Among many living in that part of the county who have also rendered assistance are Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Sinclair, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Devlin, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hughey, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Maust, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Fernstermacher, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Morecomb and others whose names are not at this writing available.

The picnic is held on the farm of J. D. Armstrong who donates each year the use of the grounds and the boats. Many of the refreshments are, through the kindness of Mrs. Armstrong prepared in the farm kitchen and many are the crying babies who are fed and cared for by their tired mothers during each picnic day within the hospitable walls of the Armstrong home. At the close of Saturday's picnic announcement was made that it would be held again in June, 1916. C. J. M.

MOTLEY REVIVAL

Evangelist Clarence J. Martin Conducting a Series of Successful Union Revival Meetings

Evangelist Clarence J. Martin is conducting a union revival at Motley in the Methodist church of which Rev. George C. Tenacke is pastor. The Free Methodist church of Motley and two country points, Morey and Birch Hill, are also assisting in the meetings. A chorus of twenty voices accompanied by musical instruments is affording much assistance.

In spite of the bad weather and many cases of serious sickness in the village the interest in the services is growing and the crowds are large. Members of the men's evangelistic teams of the Methodist and Baptist churches of Brainerd have accepted an invitation to attend the Motley meeting soon and render assistance.

Gov. Hammond evidently expects to stick to his job, or try to, as he announced at a meeting of the hardware dealers, in session at St. Paul, that "I may be a candidate again, I have a bad habit of running for office," which would indicate that the talk of his being a candidate for United States senator next year is a dim possibility, regardless of the gossip.

The St. Cloud Times says that "Billy Sunday's secretary has resigned, and is now exposing the fact that Billy steals his sermons. Printed comparisons have proven that Sunday used Bob Ingersoll's Memorial Day addresses as his own." Bob has gone to the great beyond, of which he claimed there was none, but Billy may object to this expose by the Times editor—and finally the secretary who made the statement says he did so in an unguarded moment and that it is not true.

The special committee from the state editorial association has agreed upon the second week of October for boosting Minnesota in the newspapers throughout the state. Articles pointing out the splendid and special opportunities which the state has to offer will be furnished and the papers will be asked to publish them, or to make a special write-up on that occasion. Also the publishers will be expected to send their newspapers to the address of a list of people looking for information regarding Minnesota, her possibilities and opportunities. The proposition is one of great importance and the publishers will be able to do more than any other agency in the line of publicity for the state in which they live if they take this matter up generally, and it will be valuable to every locality.

Did She Say It?

The fair maid glowered fiercely at the handle of her pen. When she bent again over the sheet of note paper and wrote rapidly.

"You are no gentleman," the letter ran, "if you think I said such a thing as she said you said I said I had said."

Next day came the reply, "Dear girl," wrote the man—"You must not think I think you think you must be that kind of girl I think you must be if you said such a thing as you said she said I said you said you had said."

It seems he knew she knew he knew she said just what she said she heard he had heard her friends had heard him say he had heard her say, but, with infinite feminine tact, she accepted his apology.—London Mail.

The Bore.

Some student of the relatively unimportant but nevertheless entertaining side lines of literary history has been investigating the origin of the term by which we characterize the man who habitually blockades the channels of agreeable human intercourse. He has decided that the word "bore" made its first appearance in the letters of Lord Carlisle and of Selwyn, but that they used it with reference not to a creature, but to a state or condition. Thus in 1767 Carlisle wrote: "I enclose a package of letters, which, if they are French, the Lord deliver you from the bore." It was not until the beginning of the last century that the word was applied to the person who wears and worries.—Boston Herald.

NETTLETON
321 S. 6th St.

THERE can be little doubt that the most magnificent celebration of the Fourth at Independence hall, Philadelphia, was in the Centennial year, 1876.

The day, marking the hundredth anniversary of the nation's birth, was as impressive as the whole resources of the nation and the community could make it. The world contributed its thousands of spectators from its most distant continents, assembled to visit the great Centennial exposition. Richard Henry Lee, grandson of one of the signers, read to an enthusiastic assemblage in Independence square the Declaration from the original manuscript—something which, with that sacred manuscript sealed in a safe in the state department library in Washington, can never occur again.

Senator Evans delivered the oration, and the heroic ode by Bayard Taylor in honor of the anniversary was read. In literal truth, on that Fourth of July the attention of the whole world was centered upon Independence hall. The night saw a gorgeous display of fireworks.

Since that time the growth of sentiment and understanding as to the priceless treasure of the old statehouse in Philadelphia has been rapid. The celebrations of the Fourth in the city of the signing have included addresses by such distinguished men as presidents of the United States. The city itself, removing its private goods and chattels and councilmen and policemen to the city hall, has devoted the statehouse to its just honors and such formal observances as, instituted on a large scale in the early nineties, have been well maintained ever since.

COURTS AN ISSUE IN NEXT ELECTION

"Rule of Reason" Will Play an Important Part.

OTHER CAMPAIGNS RECALLED

It is asserted that "Big Business Has Been Emancipated by the Court's Ruling"—Simmons of North Carolina Optimistic and Can See No War With Any Nation—Too Few Sharing In Prosperity of Country.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 24.—[Special.]—The campaign of 1896 was fought largely upon the silver issue, but much was said about the courts. It was claimed that often the tribunals failed to carry out the plain intent of the law and wishes of the people. In 1912 the recall of judicial decisions, on account of their failure to interpret the will of the people, was injected into the campaign by the bull moosers.

Recent decisions of the courts in trust questions are likely to call forth a revival of these criticisms. There is a feeling that courts err on the side of property rights and that the people suffer thereby. Congress has gone to some lengths to enact legislation to curb combinations and place corporations under control. These court decisions tend to relieve them from the intent of congress.

Rule of Reason.

The rule of reason, established by the United States supreme court, has been followed by the lower courts. It is now said that "big business has been emancipated by the court's rule of reason." That rule was severely criticised at the time it was promulgated, and we are likely to hear a great deal more about it when congress convenes. It would not be surprising to see a number of presidential possibilities take a firm stand on this subject of judicial procedure.

It is also likely that some one will bob up and assert that the Roosevelt contention of 1912 for a recall of decisions was sound because of these rule of reason cases.

Looks Rosy to Simmons.

No war with Germany; no war with Mexico; no extra session of congress; Wilson to be re-elected and re-elected; prosperity everywhere; not a single cloud in the sky. That is the way it appeared to Senator Simmons of North Carolina, chairman of the finance committee of the senate. And so he bubbled over with glad tidings when he came to Washington from the Tar Heel State. Simmons did not say much about the revenues, however, and that is a matter which must interest him on account of the position he holds as head of the committee which will handle legislation on this subject next winter if any is attempted.

Something For Home Folks.

"It's sweet to hear the watch dog's honest bark by deep mouthed welcome as we draw near home," quoted Tom Reed at Alex. Dockery when the latter eased up a bit on his economic program just as an appropriation for Missouri came in sight. And so when there appeared a little interview with Senator Martin, chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, in favor of liberal expenditures for national defense he added a few words. "There should be provision made for better protection at the entrance to Chesapeake bay," he said. It has been insisted upon by Virginians for years that a strong fortress should be built between the Virginia capes.

Circle Too Limited.

There is quite a deep conviction that not enough people are sharing in the prosperity which a few are getting as a result of the war in Europe. It is known that certain people are heaping up huge fortunes by selling goods at high prices to the allies in Europe. Manufacturers of war materials are making immense profits, but there is a large percentage of the people of the country who do not get anything out of the money which has been coming from abroad. They are not satisfied with existing conditions. They do not see much of the prosperity of which there is considerable talk.

Like Dissenting Opinions.

"Bryan's statements are like dissenting opinions of justices of the supreme court," remarked a man who gives attention to the highest tribunal. "They have some interest to the public and are uttered for the satisfaction of the dissenting judge, but they have no effect upon the decision. The justices have something they call 'obiter dictum,' which is something to the same effect. Bryan's opinions in opposition to the Wilson acts are in a similar category. They are incidental opinions, but do not affect the decisions."

The Leading Lawyer.

With Elihu Root out of the senate it is probable that Senator Sutherland of Utah will be accorded the place of leading lawyer in that body. He has always been regarded as one of the best. Sutherland is a candidate for re-election and is meeting with opposition because he follows his own convictions in great questions. One of these is in regard to prohibition. Sutherland did not think prohibition was practicable in Washington and voted that way; hence the prohibitionists of Utah are after his scalp.

A Legacy.

"Now own up, my man. Didn't you invent that tale of woe?"
"No, sir; I got it from a friend who has gone out of the begging business."
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

No Longer a "Corn Belt."

The "corn belt" used to be a strip of country running generally from Pennsylvania to Kansas, and including Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and the southern half of Iowa.

But the fashion in belts is changing, as all fashions are liable to do. The corn belt is spreading itself out. It goes further east and further west, and most emphatically it is moving to the north and south. Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and even the Dakotas and Montana are now in the corn belt. The southern states are knocking at the door. Georgia, Alabama and the Carolinas are showing that a hundred bushels to the acre is nothing to them.

The corn belt in the future will extend from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, and it will reach to the Rocky mountains, if not beyond. It is no longer a belt, but a section, comprising almost the entire arable portion of the United States, and may even include the deserts and the mountains to a limited extent.—Farm Life.

Age of Granite.

It used to be thought that granite was the oldest of all rocks and that it formed the globe's first crust. Now, however, geologists believe that granite may be of any age or epoch. The granites found in Germany and the Vosges mountains of France date from one period of the world's history, those found in the British Isles from an entirely different period and those found in the United States from still other periods. Enormous pressure, combined with heat and water, must have been necessary to produce granite. Some scientists declare that the granites in the highlands of Scotland must have been formed when 60,000 feet of overlying rocks were piled above them and that those of Cornwall required 40,000 feet of rock pressure. In other localities it is estimated that the pressures under which granite consolidated must have been equal to that of an overlying mass of rock nine miles in thickness.—New York American.

Investment and Speculation.

When any one is buying a coat or a fishing rod or a rose tree or laying down a cellar or setting up a library either he knows what he wants, where to get it and what to pay for it or else he takes earnest counsel with his friends and with the most trustworthy professional advisers that he can find and uses all the wits that he and others can bring to bear on the subject in order to make sure that his purchase is prudently conducted. He attends sales, rummages in shops and discusses the matter in his club until he and it are voted a nuisance. If only half as much time and trouble were devoted to the careful selection of investments there would be fewer bad companies, unscrupulous promoters and ornamental directors, the world would be very much richer, and its riches would show less tendency to gravitate into questionable hands.—Cornhill Magazine.

A Curious Wish.

I want to be sick! I want to lie in bed and be fussed over and petted and nursed. So far in my life I have had but one disease—health. It sticks out all over me. It runs swiftly through me. It yanks me up in the morning. It tucks me up in bed at night and shoves me off into unexcited sleep not even to dream. It stands by my chair at meals and gives me an appetite for just the right food in just the right quantities.

I want symptoms. I want to be put to bed and petted. I want to come back to convalescence with brews and potions and soft cool fingers and dark rooms and sweet flowers to beguile me. I want to be sick!—H. S. Haskins in Smart Set.

Why Steam Casts a Shadow.

Why does water cast no shadow, while steam, which is invisible, does cast a shadow? Pure water in a state of rest is of uniform density, and the rays of light, although they may be refracted, pass through it almost unimpeded in parallel lines. Steam is composed of vapor of different degrees of density, intermingled usually with some air, so that the rays of light entering it are not uniformly refracted and therefore interfere with and neutralize each other to a considerable degree, as counter or cross waves strike each other down and tend to create a smooth sea.—Chicago Herald.

GOOD SUGGESTION TO

BRAINERD PEOPLE

It is surprising the amount of old, foul matter the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Alder-i-ca, drains from the system. THURSDAY, JUNE 24, 1915.

Gov. Hammond evidently expects to stick to his job, or try to, as he announced at a meeting of the hardware dealers, in session at St. Paul, that "I may be a candidate again. I have a bad habit of running for office," which would indicate that the talk of his being a candidate for United States senator next year is a dim possibility, regardless of the gossip.

The St. Cloud Times says that "Billy Sunday's" secretary has resigned, and is now exposing the fact that Billy steals his sermons. Printed comparisons have proven that Sunday used Bob Ingersoll's Memorial Day addresses as his own. Bob has gone to the great beyond, of which he claimed there was none, but Billy may object to this expose by the Times editor—and finally the secretary who made the statement says he did so in an unguarded moment and that it is not true.

The special committee from the state editorial association has agreed upon the second week of October for boosting Minnesota in the newspapers throughout the state. Articles pointing out the splendid and special opportunities which the state has to offer will be furnished and the papers will be asked to publish them, or to make a special write-up on that occasion. Also the publishers will be expected to send their newspapers to the address of a list of people looking for information regarding Minnesota, her possibilities and opportunities. The proposition is one of great importance and the publishers will be able to do more than any other agency in the line of publicity for the state in which they live if they take this matter up generally, and it will be valuable to every locality.

Whooping Cough

Well—everyone knows the effect of pin forests on coughs. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey is a remedy which brings quick relief for whooping cough, loosens the mucus, soothes the lining of the throat and lungs, and makes the coughing spells less severe. A family with growing children should not be without it. Keep it handy for all coughs and colds, 25c at your druggist.—Adv't.

Did She Say It?

The fair maid gnawed fiercely at the handle of her pen. Then she bent again over the sheet of note paper and wrote rapidly.

"You are no gentleman," the letter ran, "if you think I said such a thing as she said you said I said I had said."

Next day came the reply, "Dear girl," wrote the man—"You must not think I think you think you must be that kind of girl I think you said she said I said you said you had said."

The Bore.

Some student of the relatively unimportant but nevertheless entertaining side lines of literary history has been investigating the origin of the term by which we characterize the man who habitually blockades the channels of agreeable human intercourse. He has decided that the word "bore" made its first appearance in the letters of Lord Carlisle and of Selwyn, but that they used it with reference not to a creature, but to a state or condition. Thus in 1767 Carlisle wrote: "I enclose a package of letters, which, if they are French, the Lord deliver you from the bore." It was not until the beginning of the last century that the word was applied to the person who wears and worries.—Boston Herald.

THERE can be little doubt that the most magnificent celebration of the Fourth at Independence hall, Philadelphia, was in the Centennial year, 1876.

The day, marking the hundredth anniversary of the nation's birth, was as impressive as the whole resources of the nation and the community could make it. The world contributed its thousands of spectators from its most distant continents, assembled to visit the great Centennial exposition. Richard Henry Lee, grandson of one of the signers, read to an enthusiastic assemblage in Independence square the Declaration from the original manuscript—something which, with that sacred manuscript sealed in a safe in the state department library in Washington, can never occur again.

Senator Evans delivered the oration, and the heroic ode by Bayard Taylor in honor of the anniversary was read. In literal truth, on that Fourth of July the attention of the whole world was centered upon Independence hall. The night saw a gorgeous display of fireworks.

Since that time the growth of sentiment and understanding as to the priceless treasure of the old statehouse in Philadelphia has been rapid. The celebrations of the Fourth in the city of the signing have included addresses by such distinguished men as presidents of the United States. The city itself, removing its private goods and chattels and councilmen and policemen to the city hall, has devoted the statehouse to its just honors and such formal observances as, instituted on a large scale in the early nineties, have been well maintained ever since.

"Rule of Reason" Will Play an Important Part.

It is asserted that "Big Business Has Been Emancipated by the Court's Ruling"—Simmons of North Carolina Optimistic and Can See No War With Any Nation—Too Few Sharing in Prosperity of Country.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 24.—[Special.]—The campaign of 1896 was fought largely upon the silver issue, but much was said about the courts. It was claimed that often the tribunals failed to carry out the plain intent of the law and wishes of the people. In 1912 the recall of judicial decisions, on account of their failure to interpret the will of the people, was injected into the campaign by the bull moosers.

Recent decisions of the courts in trust questions are likely to call forth a revival of these criticisms. There is a feeling that courts err on the side of property rights and that the people suffer thereby. Congress has gone to some lengths to enact legislation to curb combinations and place corporations under control. These court decisions tend to relieve them from the intent of congress.

The rule of reason, established by the United States supreme court, has been followed by the lower courts. It is now said that "big business has been emancipated by the court's rule of reason." That rule was severely criticized at the time it was promulgated, and we are likely to hear a great deal more about it when congress convenes. It would not be surprising to see a number of presidential possibilities take a firm stand on this subject of judicial procedure.

It is also likely that some one will hold up and assert that the Roosevelt contention of 1912 for a recall of decisions was sound because of these rule of reason cases.

Looks Rosy to Simmons.

No war with Germany; no war with Mexico; no extra session of congress; Wilson to be re-elected and re-elected; prosperity everywhere; not a single cloud in the sky. That is the way it appeared to Senator Simmons of North Carolina, chairman of the finance committee of the senate. And so he bubbled over with glad tidings when he came to Washington from the Tar Heel State. Simmons did not say much about the royalties, however, and that is a matter which must interest him on account of the position he holds as head of the committee which will handle legislation on this subject next winter if any is attempted.

Something For Home Folks.

"This sweet to hear the watch dog's honest bark bay deep mouthed welcome as we draw near home," quoted Tom Reed at Alex. Dockery when the latter eased up a bit on his economic program just as an appropriation for Missouri came in sight. And so when there appeared a little interview with Senator Martin, chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, in favor of liberal expenditures for national defense he added a few words. "There should be provision made for better protection at the entrance to Chesapeake bay," he said. It has been insisted upon by Virginians for years that a strong fortress should be built between the Virginia capes.

Circle Too Limited.

There is quite a deep conviction that not enough people are sharing in the prosperity which a few are getting as a result of the war in Europe. It is known that certain people are heaping up huge fortunes by selling goods at high prices to the allies in Europe. Manufacturers of war materials are making immense profits, but there is a large percentage of the people of the country who do not get anything out of the money which has been coming from abroad. They are not satisfied with existing conditions. They do not see much of the prosperity of which there is considerable talk.

Like Dissenting Opinions.

"Bryan's statements are like dissenting opinions of justices of the supreme court," remarked a man who gives attention to the highest tribunal. "They have some interest to the public and are uttered for the satisfaction of the dissenting judge, but they have no effect upon the decision. The justices have something they call 'obiter dictum,' which is something to the same effect. Bryan's opinions in opposition to the Wilson acts are in a similar category. They are incidental opinions, but do not affect the decisions."

The Leading Lawyer.

With Elihu Root out of the senate it is probable that Senator Sutherland of Utah will be accorded the place of leading lawyer in that body. He has always been regarded as one of the best. Sutherland is a candidate for re-election and is meeting with opposition because he follows his own convictions in great questions. One of these is in regard to prohibition. Sutherland did not think prohibition was practicable in Washington and voted that way; hence the prohibitionists of Utah are after his scalp.

A Legacy.

"Now own up, my man. Didn't you invent that tale of woe?"
"No, sir; I got it from a friend who has gone out of the begging business."
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The "corn belt" used to be a strip of country running generally from Pennsylvania to Kansas, and including Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and the southern half of Iowa.

But the fashion in belts is changing, as all fashions are liable to do. The corn belt is spreading itself out. It goes further east and further west, and most emphatically it is moving to the north and south. Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and even the Dakotas and Montana are now in the corn belt. The southern states are knocking at the door, Georgia, Alabama and the Carolinas are showing that a hundred bushels to the acre is nothing to them.

The corn belt in the future will extend from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, and it will reach to the Rocky mountains, if not beyond. It is no longer a belt, but a section, comprising almost the entire arable portion of the United States, and may even include the deserts and the mountains to a limited extent.—Farm Life.

Age of Granite.

It used to be thought that granite was the oldest of all rocks and that it formed the globe's first crust. Now, however, geologists believe that granite may be of any age or epoch. The granites found in Germany and the Vosges mountains of France date from one period of the world's history, those found in the British Isles from an entirely different period and those found in the United States from still other periods. Enormous pressure, combined with heat and water, must have been necessary to produce granite. Some scientists declare that the granites in the highlands of Scotland must have been formed when 60,000 feet of overlying rocks were piled above them and that those of Cornwall required 40,000 feet of rock pressure. In other localities it is estimated that the pressures under which granite consolidated must have been equal to that of an overlying mass of rock nine miles in thickness.—New York American.

Investment and Speculation.

When any one is buying a coat or a fishing rod or a rose tree or laying down a cellar or setting up a library either he knows what he wants, where to get it and what to pay for it or else he takes earnest counsel with his friends and with the most trustworthy professional advisers that he can find and uses all the wits that he and others can bring to bear on the subject in order to make sure that his purchase is prudently conducted. He attends sales, rummages in shops and discusses the matter in his club until he and it are voted a nuisance. If only half as much time and trouble were devoted to the careful selection of investments there would be fewer bad companies, unscrupulous promoters and ornamental directors, the world would be very much richer, and its riches would show less tendency to gravitate into questionable hands.—Cornhill Magazine.

A Curious Wish.

I want to be sick! I want to lie in bed and be fussed over and petted and nursed. So far in my life I have had but one disease—health. It sticks out all over me. It runs swiftly through me. It yanks me up in the morning. It tucks me up in bed at night and shoves me off into unexcited sleep not even to dream. It stands by my chair at meals and gives me an appetite for just the right food in just the right quantities.

I want symptoms. I want to be put to bed and petted. I want to come back to convalescence with brews and potions and soft cool fingers and dark rooms and sweet flowers to beguile me. I want to be sick!—H. S. Haskins in Smart Set.

Why Steam Casts a Shadow.

Why does water cast no shadow, while steam, which is invisible, does cast a shadow? Pure water in a state of rest is of uniform density, and the rays of light, although they may be refracted, pass through it almost unimpeded in parallel lines. Steam is composed of vapor of different degrees of density, intermingled usually with some air, so that the rays of light entering it are not uniformly refracted and therefore interfere with and neutralize each other to a considerable degree, as counter or cross waves strike each other down and tend to create a smooth sea.—Chicago Herald.

Summer Kitchen of Ole J. Olson at 917 Twelfth Street Torn to Pieces, Trees Leveled

Buzzing like a monster road engine a miniature cyclone struck the home of Ole J. Olson, 917 South Twelfth street, in Southeast Brainerd, jarred the house, tore his summer kitchen to pieces, leveled trees, damaged two other sheds near by and following a creek traveled southeast out of the city.

The twister did this damage at about 6 o'clock last evening.

A summer kitchen near the Olson place across the street was torn from its foundation and whirled fifty feet and deposited on a vacant lot. The cyclone very considerably left the stove.

For a time the air was black and planks, wash tubs, dirt, leaves, etc. whirled in a dizzy dance. Eye witnesses say the twister dipped to the earth and traveled 200 feet and that the twisting motion was visible some three minutes. Then it lifted and tore away in a southeasterly direction.

COMMITTEE IS TO INVESTIGATE

Railroad Committee of the Chamber of Commerce to Visit Minneapolis Regarding Standing

OF THE LUCE ELECTRIC LINES

Company's Representative G. A. Itskin, Addressed the Chamber on Wednesday Night

At the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last night the proposition of the Electric Short Line Railway Co. was presented by the company's representative, G. A. Itskin, who gave a detailed history of the work the company has accomplished to date and their plans for future extensions.

According to his statement, the company plans on constructing about five hundred miles of line in the next three or four years, by means of a bond issue covering the railway property and secured by the Minneapolis terminal. By this method sufficient capital can be secured to carry out the work as proposed.

The proposition as submitted contemplates the purchase of a certain amount of terminal stock by the business men of Brainerd in return for which the Electric Short Line Railway Company will enter into a contract to have its line in operation here within three years from the date of acceptance of the subscriptions. In case of default in getting its line completed here by the time specified the company binds itself to repurchase any or all of said stock at par, at the purchaser's option, without releasing the company from its obligation to build the line here as soon thereafter as its financial condition will permit.

Upon consideration of the proposition submitted, the Chamber voted that the railroad committee be instructed to visit Minneapolis for the purpose of looking into the financial standing of the company and securing any data they may obtain bearing upon the probability of the road being extended to this city, and report the result of their findings to the Chamber as soon as possible thereafter.

The meeting was presided over by Vice President Edward Crust and Rev. G. P. Sheridan officiated as secretary pro tem.

The recommendation from the advisory board regarding the collection of dues was adopted. This provides that the finance committee be authorized to confer with Attorneys Swanson, Alderman and Wieland relative to the validity of the membership contract signed and if in their opinion the contracts are valid, the finance committee be instructed to proceed to collect by process of law.

A communication from the railway picnic committee was read and ordered filed. It stated:

"In behalf of the entire N. P. Ry. picnic committee, I wish to thank, through your honorable body, all the merchants of Brainerd, who so kindly donated towards our prizes for the field sports, on Saturday the 19th last. The picnic was a success from every standpoint and the different prizes were very much appreciated.

Again thanking you all, we beg to remain,

Respectfully yours,

N. P. RY. PICNIC COMMITTEE.

J. S. Robertson, Chairman,

G. J. Kroes, Secretary.

The special committee on having the Soo extend its line to Brainerd reported and were given further time. This letter addressed to Mayor R. A. Belse by President Pennington was made public:

"I have received the copy of the resolutions adopted by your City Development Committee and I wish to thank you and the citizens for the interest they have taken in the Soo Line.

I cannot make any promises until the railroad situation is better than it is today. The public cannot look for, or hope to have, any extensions or new lines built because the railroads are not making proper returns on their investments, and consequently they cannot sell their securities to advantage. If they could, they would be only too glad to build new lines. The development of the railroads as a whole will have to lie dormant until freight and passenger rates are raised.

You must realize that the operating expenses of the roads in the last few years have been increased something over 38 per cent and also that from your own experience, all materials which are used by the railroads, (and they are many) have advanced to a great extent and the rates are gradually going down, until there is such a spread that there is nothing left for the investors, who have their money in the railroads. The Soo Road is more fortunate than others, on account of their low capitalization and may be able to pull through, but a great many others

Should the times change, we would be glad to extend our lines into Brainerd as we already have a line not very many miles from there.

BRAINERD SHUTS OUT VERNDALE

Beats Them 2 to 0 in a Fast Game at the Creamery Picnic at Verndale, Large Crowd Present

BOWMAN PITCH FOR BRAINERD

Bowman and Gourd Pitched Airtight Ball, Brainerd's Runs Came in the Fourth Inning

Brainerd again demonstrated yesterday that it has one of the fastest ball teams in the state of Minnesota when the boys shut out the fast Verndale team to a score of 2 to 0. The game was played under ideal weather conditions and on a diamond that was much to the liking of the Athletics. One of the largest crowds of the season that has ever witnessed a game at Verndale was on hand to see the fracas. Verndale did itself proud in arranging a celebration for farmers and everybody was bubbling over with enthusiasm and excitement. A program of foot races, band concerts and other amusements were arranged for the morning and early afternoon after which the ball game was called. There were over 600 Verndalites and farmers from the surrounding country on hand when the ump called "Play Ball" while the band was on the job with many fine selections.

Brainerd was given its first bats and demonstrated conclusively that it was out to win. Harry Gourd was touched up freely right from the beginning though with gilt edge support not a single runner reached second until the third inning and then only to die on bases. The fireworks, however, were started in the fourth inning when Fred Cook reached first on a short bingle where "Swedie" Erickson relieved him and was put in to run. Tom Templeton made a single over short stop which advanced Erickson to second and through clever base running both runners advanced one base. At this stage of the game Billy Benda, "the boy wonder," came to the rescue and slammed one to left field which appeared to be one of the longest hits ever made on the field. Both runners scored but on a close play on third he was declared out in an attempt to stretch the hit into a three-bagger. This was the end of the scoring and for five innings the teams saw-sawed back and forth without either scoring. In the eighth, however, Verndale succeeded in getting a man on third and second but Bowman tightened up and struck out the third man retiring the side.

With the winning of this game Brainerd has the majority of games played to its credit and if arrangements can be made later in the season Verndale will be taken on for a series of two games on the home grounds.

ARE ARRESTED BY A SPOTTER

Leniency of Judge Halvorson Likely to Turn to Sterner Measures Than a Mere Fine

Spotters of the Northern Pacific railway this morning caught two boys attempting to break into a box car in the yards and arrested them in the act. They were given a hearing before Judge Gustave Halvorson and were fined $10 each.

Remarks have been made that boys thought the sentences in this and a preceding case, $10 fine, a light sentence. Judge Halvorson has been lenient because all offenders brought up have appeared in court for the first time.

However should he change his mind and impose straight jail sentences it may have a deterring effect on this wave of box car jobbies in the yards.

The Dispatch has followed its usual course in not publishing names of first offenders. However, if the arrests continue, publicity will be given in full measure and the spectacle of relatives running to the paper and begging not to have published the name of a box car robber or car seal breaker will be done away with.

Children should be educated by their parents, guardians or others having jurisdiction that breaking the seal of a box car is every bit as dangerous a practice as breaking into a house. Both should be severely punished.

TWISTER AT WORK IN CITY

Lifts a Summer Kitchen Fifty Feet and Leaves the Stove Behind on S. E. 12th Street

WASH TUBS WHIRL AROUND

Summer Kitchen of Ole J. Olson at 917 Twelfth Street Torn to Pieces, Trees Levelled

Buzzing like a monster road engine a miniature cyclone struck the home of Ole J. Olson, 917 South Twelfth street, in Southeast Brainerd, jarred the house, tore his summer kitchen to pieces, leveled trees, damaged two other sheds near by and following a creek traveled southeast out of the city.

The twister did this damage at about 6 o'clock last evening.

A summer kitchen near the Olson place across the street was torn from its foundation and whirled fifty feet and deposited on a vacant lot. The cyclone very considerably left the stove.

For a time the air was black and planks, wash tubs, dirt, leaves, etc. whirled in a dizzy dance. Eye witnesses say the twister dipped to the earth and traveled 200 feet and that the twisting motion was visible some three minutes. Then it lifted and tore away in a southeasterly direction.

Railroad Committee of the Chamber of Commerce to Visit Minneapolis Regarding Standing

Company's Representative G. A. Itskin, Addressed the Chamber on Wednesday Night

At the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last night the proposition of the Electric Short Line Railway Co. was presented by the company's representative, G. A. Itskin, who gave a detailed history of the work the company has accomplished to date and their plans for future extensions.

According to his statement, the company plans on constructing about five hundred miles of line in the next three or four years, by means of a bond issue covering the railway property and secured by the Minneapolis terminal. By this method sufficient capital can be secured to carry out the work as proposed.

The proposition as submitted contemplates the purchase of a certain amount of terminal stock by the business men of Brainerd in return for which the Electric Short Line Railway Company will enter into a contract to have its line in operation here within three years from the date of acceptance of the subscriptions. In case of default in getting its line completed here by the time specified the company binds itself to repurchase any or all of said stock at par, at the purchaser's option, without releasing the company from its obligation to build the line here as soon thereafter as its financial condition will permit.

Upon consideration of the proposition submitted, the Chamber voted that the railroad committee be instructed to visit Minneapolis for the purpose of looking into the financial standing of the company and securing any data they may obtain bearing upon the probability of the road being extended to this city, and report the result of their findings to the Chamber as soon as possible thereafter.

The meeting was presided over by Vice President Edward Crust and Rev. G. P. Sheridan officiated as secretary pro tem.

The recommendation from the advisory board regarding the collection of dues was adopted. This provides that the finance committee be authorized to confer with Attorneys Swanson, Alderman and Wieland relative to the validity of the membership contract signed and if in their opinion the contracts are valid, the finance committee be instructed to proceed to collect by process of law.

A communication from the railway picnic committee was read and ordered filed. It stated:

"In behalf of the entire N. P. Ry. picnic committee, I wish to thank, through your honorable body, all the merchants of Brainerd, who so kindly donated towards our prizes for the field sports, on Saturday the 19th last. The picnic was a success from every standpoint and the different prizes were very much appreciated. Again thanking you all, we beg to remain,

Respectfully yours,

N. P. RY. PICNIC COMMITTEE.

J. S. Robertson, Chairman, G. J. Kroes, Secretary.

The special committee on having the Soo extend its line to Brainerd reported and were given further time. This letter addressed to Mayor R. A. Belse by President Pennington was made public:

"I have received the copy of the resolutions adopted by your City Development Committee and I wish to thank you and the citizens for the interest they have taken in the Soo Line.

I cannot make any promises until the railroad situation is better than it is today. The public cannot look for, or hope to have, any extensions or new lines built because the railroads are not making proper returns on their investments, and consequently they cannot sell their securities to advantage. If they could, they would be only too glad to build new lines. The development of the railroads as a whole will have to lie dormant until freight and passenger rates are raised.

You must realize that the operating expenses of the roads in the last few years have been increased something over 38 per cent and also that from your own experience, all materials which are used by the railroads, (and they are many,) have advanced to a great extent and the rates are gradually going down, until there is such a spread that there is nothing left for the investors, who have their money in the railroads. The Soo Road is more fortunate than others, on account of their low capitalization and may be able to pull through, but a great many others cannot, which makes a great difference in the sale of railroad securities in the money centers. Railroads are not looked upon singly, but as a whole, and you know from your observations that their bonds are selling very low.

Should the times change, we would be glad to extend our lines into Brainerd as we already have a line not very many miles from there.

Joliet, Ill., June 23.—Warden Edmund M. Allen was deeply affected when he received a letter of sympathy from the 1,700 convicts in the Joliet penitentiary. "It was not the 'honor system' that killed my wife—it was one man," he said with tears in his eyes. Spotters of the Northern Pacific railway this morning caught two boys attempting to break into a box car in the yards and arrested them in the act. They were given a hearing before Judge Gustave Halvorson and were fined $10 each.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

We ate a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in uric acid, to loosen a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders. Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

The captain came and put his head out of the door.

"Mr. Quest," he said, "can you spare me a moment? You can all come, if you like."

They moved up towards him. The captain closed the door of his cabin. He pointed to a carpet-sweeper which lay against the wall.

"Look at that," he invited.

They lifted the top. Inside were several sandwiches and a small can of tea.

"What on earth is this?" Quest demanded.

The captain, without a word, led them into his inner room. A huge lounge stood in one corner. He lifted the valance. Underneath were some crumbs.

"You see," he pointed out, "there's room there for a man to have hidden, especially if he could crawl out on deck at night. I couldn't make out why the dickens Brown was always sweeping out my room, and I took up this thing a little time ago and looked at it. This is what I found."

"Where's Brown?" Quest asked, quickly.

"I rang down for the chief steward," the captain continued, "and ordered Brown to be sent up at once. The chief steward came himself instead. It seems Brown went off without his wages, but with a huge parcel of bedding, on the first barge this morning, before anyone was about."

Quest groaned as he turned away.

"Captain," he declared, "I am ashamed. He has been here all the time and we've let him slip through our fingers. Girls," he went on briskly, turning towards Laura, who had just come up, "India's off. We'll catch this barge, if there's time. Our luggage can be put on shore when the boat docks."

The captain walked gloomily with them to the gangway.

"Professor," Quest asked, "how long would it take us to get to this Mongar village you spoke about?"

"Two or three days, if we can get camels," the officer replied. "I see you agree with me, then, as to Craig's probable destination?"

Quest nodded.

"What sort of fellows are they, anyway?" he asked. "Will it be safe for us to push on alone?"

"With me," the professor assured him, "you will be safe anywhere. I speak a little of their language. I have lived with them. They are far more civilized than some of the interior tribes."

They disembarked and were driven to the hotel, still discussing their project. The professor had disappeared for some time, but rejoined them later.

"It is all arranged," he announced. "I found a dragoman whom I knew. We shall have four of the best camels and a small escort ready to start tomorrow morning. Furthermore, I have news. An Englishman, whose description precisely tallies with Craig's, started off only an hour ago in the same direction. This time, at any rate, Craig cannot escape us."

"They made their way back to the hotel, dined in a cool, bare room, and sauntered out again into the streets. The professor led the way to a little building, outside which a man was volubly inviting all to enter.

"You shall see one of the sights of Port Said," he promised. "This is a real Egyptian dancing girl."

A girl, who seemed to be dressed in little more than a winding veil, glided on to the stage, swaying and moving slowly to the rhythm of the monotonous music. She danced a measure which none of them except the professor had ever seen before, coming now and then so close that they could almost feel her hot breath, and Lenora felt somewhat vaguely disturbed by the glitter of her eyes.

Suddenly Laura leaned forward.

"Look at the professor," she whispered.

They all turned their heads. A queer change seemed to have come into the professor's face. His teeth were gleaming between his parted lips, his head was thrust forward a little, his eyes were filled with a strange, hard light. He was a transformed being, unrecognizable, perturbing. Even while they watched, the girl floated close to where he sat and leaned towards him with a queer, mocking smile. His hand suddenly descended upon her foot. She laughed still more. There was a little exclamation from Lenora. The professor's whole frame quivered. He snatched the anklet from the girl's ankle and bent over it.

She leaned towards him, a torrent of words streaming from her lips. The professor answered her in her own language. She listened to him in amazement. The anger passed. She held out both her hands. The professor still argued. She shook her head. Finally he placed some gold in her palms. She patted him on the cheek, laughed into his eyes, pointed behind and resumed her dance. The anklet remained in the professor's hand.

"Say, we'll get out of this," Quest said. "The girls have had enough."

The professor made no objection. "Congratulate me," he said. "I have been a collector of Egyptian gold ornaments all my life. This is the one anklet I needed to complete my collection. It has the double mark of the Pharaohs. I recognized it at once. There are a thousand like it, you would think, in the bazaars there. In reality there may be, perhaps, a dozen more in all Egypt which are genuine."

They all looked at one another. Their relief had grown too poignant for words.

"Early start tomorrow," Quest reminded them.

Baptism of Fire Greeted Mr. Harry Mestayer's Entrance In Motion Picture Plays

[Harry Mestayer is one of the most prominent actors on the American stage. He has assumed leading roles in many important stage productions and comes from a line of theatrical people. He has written herewith his experiences as a leading man in the Selig Red Seal play, "The Millionaire Baby."]

By HARRY MESTAYER.
"Two years ago if anyone had approached me with a contract to appear in motion pictures I would have turned down the offer. And yet, like many other actors, I have seen the light. The change of heart was not compulsory, for I came to realize that in motion pictures of higher class the conscientious actor has as great an opportunity for artistic work as on the spoken stage.

I considered at some length, too, before I affiliated permanently with any motion picture concern, and I chose the Selig Polyscope company because of the enviable reputation attained by the Selig spectacular productions and the artistic environments made possible by the careful supervision of Mr. William N. Selig.

"When I started to work in 'The Millionaire Baby' in the Chicago studios of the Selig Polyscope company I was also appearing in the lead in a dramatic production on the speaking stage at one of the leading theaters in that city. This placed me under quite a strain and all I did for several weeks was work and sleep—and very little of the latter. I was at the studio every morning at 8:30 and worked steadily until 5 or 5:30 in the afternoon. Then I rushed downtown and, after a rather hurried supper, sped to the theater in time to appear on the stage at 8:15.

"It was quite an experience to be working in two characters which were themselves so different and which

to enter the shack. Suddenly, however, the flames leaped up, fanned by a breeze which suddenly swooped down on us, and the other player and myself found that we were within the four walls of a blazing furnace, the door having caught fire, too.

"Our first impulse, naturally, was to make our escape in the quickest manner possible, but both of us realized that if we did it would require the rebuilding of the shack and repeating of the many efforts we had in getting the scene to the point we had reached, so we determined to make an effort to carry out our parts in the gamest manner possible. We rushed through the flames to the door and then with my fellow player I staggered through the door and out in front of the camera, where we both fell exhausted. When I saw the picture I easily understood why the director told us we had done very well, for the way we both sank to the ground was realistic in every detail.

"This scene also called for a rain effect and the water pouring down upon us added to our discomfort. This is merely one incident of the dangers to which a picture player is exposed. I would not have gone through that much in ten years on the stage, but the fact that I now can have my own home and keep regular hours every day more than makes up for all.

"I presume most of my readers know that 'The Millionaire Baby' was adapted to the screen from the story by Anna Katherine Green, and I am sure that those who have read the works of this noted writer will agree with me when I say that her plots are more baffling than those created by any other writer of the present day. There were scenes in the production where the slightest show of any kind of emotion would have disclosed the denouement and ruined the entire effect of the picture, so you can imagine how I felt at first playing close up to the camera and having to hold every muscle of my face tense when I had been used to being far away from the audience, with the footlights between us, where facial expression is a secondary consideration.

"This is one of the causes for many

were presented through such widely different mediums, and this novelty relieved the monotony of such a steady grind.

"I will try to tell you some of the interesting things which occurred during the filming of the big scenes for 'The Millionaire Baby.' The first one that comes to my mind, and one which I will remember for a long, long time, was a fire scene in which I was supposed to rescue another actor, who was playing the part of my employer, from a burning building. Our director tried using smokepots, but these did not give the realistic effect which he desired, so he determined that the shack which had been erected in the large yard of the studio would have to be burned and that the two of us who were to appear in the scene would have to undertake what is termed by the players 'a stunt.' In other words, we would have to run the risk of being injured for the sake of realism.

"The other player was placed in the shack and the fire started. The 'business' of my part called for my rushing into the building and carrying the other man out through the smoke and flames and 'off' the scene. Oil was sprinkled on various parts of the shack, but not around the door through which we were to exit while I was doing the 'rescue.' All appeared to be going nicely as I made my way past the camera and started failures of stage stars when they appear before the camera. They fail to realize that everything they do is recorded by the camera and that a slip which might go unnoticed on the stage will ruin a whole scene in a film drama and possibly spoil the entire production if it is not retaken. One of the most difficult scenes in 'The Millionaire Baby' was the one in which the child is stolen. The skill of handling this so as not to 'kill' the whole story depended more upon the men who re-touched the film after the director had finished with it than upon the players, and I understand that these men worked till the wee small hours several nights in succession.

"Had the players who supported me in this production been other than they were I do not doubt but what my lot would have been anything but an enjoyable one, but as it was we were just like one big family from the very moment we began work. It was this perfect team work in the many trying scenes that gave the film the finished effect which I am sure will prove a delight to audiences wherever it is shown. I have nothing but praise for all the players and the director and, above all, for William N. Selig, the man who is behind the many splendid productions presented by his company, and whose orders to his directors are: 'Make a picture regardless of cost and make one that they will remember.'"

TRUST a tobacco lover to tell his friends as soon as he has become acquainted with the Real Tobacco Chew. Not only real tobacco, but the best of real tobacco. A little chew lasts a long time—it's chuck full of the good tobacco taste.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.

THE HUMAN BRAIN.

Our brains are seventy year clocks. The angel of life winds them up once for all, then closes the case and gives the key into the hand of the angel of the resurrection. Tick-tack, tick-tack, go the wheels of thought. Our will cannot stop them. They cannot stop themselves. Sleep cannot still them. Madness only makes them go faster. Death alone can break into the case, and, seizing the ever swinging pendulum which we call the heart, silence at last the clicking of the terrible escapement we have carried so long beneath our wrinkled foreheads.—Holmes.

The captain came and put his head out of the door.

"Mr. Quest," he said, "can you spare me a moment? You can all come, if you like."

They moved up towards him. The captain closed the door of his cabin. He pointed to a carpet-sweeper which lay against the wall.

"Look at that," he invited. They lifted the top. Inside were several sandwiches and a small can of tea.

"What on earth is this?" Quest demanded.

The captain, without a word, led them into his inner room. A huge lounge stood in one corner. He lifted the valance. Underneath were some crumbs.

"You see," he pointed out, "there's room there for a man to have hidden, especially if he could crawl out on deck at night. I couldn't make out why the dickens Brown was always sweeping out my room, and I took up this thing a little time ago and looked at it. This is what I found."

"Where's Brown?" Quest asked, quickly.

"I rang down for the chief steward," the captain continued, "and ordered Brown to be sent up at once. The chief steward came himself instead. It seems Brown went off without his wages, but with a huge parcel of bedding, on the first barge this morning, before anyone was about."

Quest groaned as he turned away.

"Captain," he declared, "I am ashamed. He has been here all the time and we've let him slip through our fingers. Girls," he went on briskly, turning towards Laura, who had just come up, "India's off. We'll catch this barge, if there's time. Our luggage can be put on shore when the boat docks."

The captain walked gloomily with them to the gangway.

"Professor," Quest asked, "how long would it take us to get to this Mongar village you spoke about?"

"Two or three days, if we can get camels," the other replied. "I see you agree with me, then, as to Craig's probable destination?"

Quest nodded.

"What sort of fellows are they, anyway?" he asked. "Will it be safe for us to push on alone?"

"With me," the professor assured him, "you will be safe anywhere. I speak a little of their language. I have lived with them. They are far more civilized than some of the interior tribes."

They disembarked and were driven to the hotel, still discussing their project. The professor had disappeared for some time, but rejoined them later.

"It is all arranged," he announced. "I found a dragoman whom I knew. We shall have four of the best camels and a small escort ready to start tomorrow morning. Furthermore, I have news. An Englishman, whose description precisely tallies with Craig's, started off only an hour ago in the same direction. This time, at any rate, Craig cannot escape us."

They made their way back to the hotel, dined in a cool, bare room, and sauntered out again into the streets. The professor led the way to a little building, outside which a man was volubly inviting all to enter.

"You shall see one of the sights of Port Said," he promised. "This is a real Egyptian dancing girl."

A girl, who seemed to be dressed in little more than a winding veil, glided on to the stage, swaying and moving slowly to the rhythm of the monotonous music. She danced a measure which none of them except the professor had ever seen before, coming now and then so close that they could almost feel her hot breath, and Lenora felt somewhat vaguely disturbed by the glitter of her eyes.

Suddenly Laura leaned forward.

"Look at the professor," she whispered.

They all turned their heads. A queer change seemed to have come into the professor's face. His teeth were gleaming between his parted lips, his head was thrust forward a little, his eyes were filled with a strange, hard light. He was a transformed being, unrecognizable, perturbing. her dance. The anklet remained in the professor's hand.

"It was quite an experience to be working in two characters which were themselves so different and which

to enter the shack. Suddenly, however, the flames leaped up, fanned by a breeze which suddenly swooped down on us, and the other player and myself found that we were within the four walls of a blazing furnace, the door having caught fire, too.

"Our first impulse, naturally, was to make our escape in the quickest manner possible, but both of us realized that if we did it would require the rebuilding of the shack and repeating of the many efforts we had in getting the scene to the point we had reached, so we determined to make an effort to carry out our parts in the gamest manner possible. We rushed through the flames to the door and then with my fellow player I staggered through the door and out in front of the camera, where we both fell exhausted. When I saw the picture I easily understood why the director told us we had done very well, for the way we both sank to the ground was realistic in every detail.

"This scene also called for a rain effect and the water pouring down upon us added to our discomfort. This is merely one incident of the dangers to which a picture player is exposed. I would not have gone through that much in ten years on the stage, but the fact that I now can have my own home and keep regular hours every day more than makes up for all.

"I presume most of my readers know that 'The Millionaire Baby' was adapted to the screen from the story by Anna Katherine Green, and I am sure that those who have read the works of this noted writer will agree with me when I say that her plots are more baffling than those created by any other writer of the present day. There were scenes in the production where the slightest show of any kind of emotion would have disclosed the denouement and ruined the entire effect of the picture, so you can imagine how I felt at first playing close up to the camera and having to hold every muscle of my face tense when I had been used to being far away from the audience, with the footlights between us, where facial expression is a secondary consideration.

"I will try to tell you some of the interesting things which occurred during the filming of the big scenes for 'The Millionaire Baby.' The first one that comes to my mind, and one which I will remember for a long time, was a fire scene in which I was supposed to rescue another actor, who was playing the part of my employer, from a burning building. Our director tried using smokepots, but these did not give the realistic effect which he desired, so he determined that the shack which had been erected in the large yard of the studio would have to be burned and that the two of us who were to appear in the scene would have to undertake what is termed by the players 'a stunt.' In other words, we would have to run the risk of being injured for the sake of realism.

"The other player was placed in the shack and the fire started. The 'business' of my part called for my rushing into the building and carrying the other man out through the smoke and flames and 'off' the scene. Oil was sprinkled on various parts of the shack, but not around the door through which we were to exit while I was doing the 'rescue.' All appeared to be going nicely as I made my way past the camera and started

failures of stage stars when they appear before the camera. They fail to realize that everything they do is recorded by the camera and that a slip which might go unnoticed on the stage will ruin a whole scene in a film drama and possibly spoil the entire production if it is not retaken. One of the most difficult scenes in 'The Millionaire Baby' was the one in which the child is stolen. The skill of handling this so as not to 'kill' the whole story depended more upon the men who retouched the film after the director had finished with it than upon the players, and I understand that these men worked till the wee small hours several nights in succession.

"Had the players who supported me in this production been other than they were I do not doubt but what my lot would have been anything but an enjoyable one, but as it was we very much enjoyed our time together. It was just like one big family from the very moment we began work. It was this perfect team work in the many trying scenes that gave the film the finished effect which I am sure will prove a delight to audiences wherever it is shown. I have nothing but praise for all the players and the director and, above all, for William N. Selig, the man who is behind the many splendid productions presented by his company, and whose orders to his directors are: 'Make a picture regardless of cost and make one that they will remember.'

TRUST a tobacco lover to tell his friends as soon as he has become acquainted with the Real Tobacco Chew. Not only real tobacco, but the best of real tobacco. A little chew lasts a long time—it's chuck full of the good tobacco taste. A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.

The Human Brain.

Our brains are seventy year clocks. The angel of life winds them up once for all, then closes the case and gives the key into the hand of the angel of the resurrection. Tick-tack, tick-tack, go the wheels of thought. Our will cannot stop them. They cannot stop themselves. Sleep cannot still them. Madness only makes them go faster. Death alone can break into the case, and seizing the ever swinging pendulum which we call the heart, silence at last the clicking of the terrible escapement we have carried so long beneath our wrinkled foreheads.—Holmes.
